

ARE REUNITED

Captain Strong and May Yohe

FORGIVE AND FORGET

Met in Lisbon and Effectuated an Immediate Reconciliation -- A Dramatic Finale.

London, Aug. 14.—It is learned today on indisputable authority, that Captain Putnam Bradlee Strong and May Yohe are reunited. The reconciliation was effected last week at Lisbon, Portugal, and yesterday the lovers left that city for Tours, France. They are traveling incognito, and making extraordinary efforts to keep the fact of their reunion a secret. It is known to but few in London tonight and probably to no one in New York.

By one who arrived here from Lisbon today the scene of the reconciliation is described as most dramatic. This man has been the constant companion of Strong ever since his flight across the ocean to escape the blandishments of the titled coquette. He had strongly advised the infatuated young New Yorker to avoid another meeting with May Yohe and was thunderstruck on his return to the hotel at Lisbon to find them together. There were no recriminations, but on both sides passionate pleas for forgiveness. On this score Miss Yohe was particularly penitential. She begged again and again that Strong would forget her cruel charge that he had stolen her jewels, while the captain spoke soothingly to her in the old, old way. Strong, on the other hand, berated himself for the ignominious flight and vowed that a lifetime of devotion would prove the sincerity of his repentance.

The plans of the reunited lovers are still in a nebulous state. In all probability Japan will be their future home. This has been the frequently expressed and darling wish of May Yohe since she came to this side in quest of her errand knight. Strong, being again completely enmeshed, will doubtless yield to her wishes. At Lisbon last week Miss Yohe stated to my informant that she would never again set foot on the pavements of New York. She also vowed that she would never again sing in public. There may be another reason for this latter determination, however, as it is known that her once prized contralto voice has sadly degenerated in the last five years.

During Strong's sojourn of one month at various places on the continent he appeared to have ample funds, though he did not live on the scale that made his doings the subject of comment in New York.

SUIT TO STAY THE QUARANTINE LAW

More Trouble Stirred up by the Norwalk Smallpox Situation.

Norwalk, Aug. 15.—On petition of Joseph Fisher, Judge Jones issued a temporary injunction, restraining the trustees of Ridgefield township from interfering with the movements of Joseph Fisher and also from expending public funds for the maintenance of the quarantine established against Norwalk.

Mr. Fisher owns a farm which lies partly in Norwalk and partly in Ridgefield. His residence in Norwalk and the quarantine has prevented his harvesting the crops or doing any other work on the Ridgefield portion of his farm. The final hearing will determine the legal right of the town to quarantine against another.

Sheriff Gates was arrested at Monroeville, whither he went to serve the injunction issued by Judge Jones. The arrest was presumably on the charge of breaking the quarantine. He was fined $25 and costs but refused to pay the fine. The trial was postponed for 30 days and he was released on his own recognizance.

PLEASANT SURPRISE

William Lander spent Sunday with Harrison Eshelman.

Charles Knott spent Sunday with friends near Mt. Union.

The Misses Flora and Dora Eshelman and Minnie and Enryl Yoder, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Benton Seefong near New Franklin.

A festival will be held at the orphan asylum, Saturday evening, August 16. All the usual refreshments will be served, as well as a supper. There will be music and many other attractions.

Miss Minnie Miller entertained her friend, Miss Dora Eshelman, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Benton Seefong and daughter, Ruth, spent Monday at the home of H. M. Eshelman.

THE MILITARY CAREER OF CAPT. W. S. BIDDLE

United States Army Officer, Well Known in Canton Society Circles.

The Detroit Free Press in commenting upon his late appointment as military attaché to Berlin, Germany, has the following to say of Captain William S. Biddle, of Company C, Fourteenth United States Infantry, which is now guarding the tomb of the late president:

Captain William S. Biddle, of Company C, Fourteenth United States Infantry, now stationed at Fort Brady, has been ordered to Berlin, Germany, as military attaché, and will leave for his new duties as soon as possible. This is perhaps the most important military position in Europe in the gift of the United States army, and is an honor justly merited by Captain Biddle, who is a Detroit man, and has a host of friends here.

Captain Biddle was born and educated in Detroit, graduating from the Central high school. Shortly afterwards he entered West Point, from which institution he was graduated in 1885. He was assigned for duty to the Thirteenth Infantry, and with his regiment saw active service in New Mexico and the Indian Territory. Early in 1892 he returned to West Point as instructor in foreign languages, which position he held for about four years. Shortly after giving that up he was assigned for duty with the Fourteenth Infantry, and when the Spanish war broke out he was stationed at the Vancouver barracks, Washington.

At the time war was declared Capt. Biddle was on his wedding trip, having married Miss Burrell, a Portland, Ore., belle. He immediately returned to his regiment, and took command of Company C, of the Fourteenth Infantry, the first expedition to the Philippine islands.

After two years of hard campaigning Capt. Biddle was ordered home, and was stationed at Fort Wayne. At that time his Detroit friends gave him a reception. Capt. Biddle was in command of the detail which guarded McKinley's tomb, at Canton. Some weeks ago, with two battalions of the Fourteenth Infantry, he was ordered to report at Fort Brady.

The Biddle family is a well known one in military circles. Col. John Biddle, an older brother and military commissioner of Washington, being appointed special military representative of the United States to the coronation of King Edward. Dr. A. P. Biddle, another brother, was major and surgeon of the Thirty-first regiment, Michigan volunteers, which served during the Spanish-American war. Mrs. Benjamin T. Douglas, a sister, resides at Grosse Ile.

NEW WAY TO STORE OIL

Down in Texas, where oil has been found in great abundance, a novel method of storage has been devised, says the New York Tribune. The tanks with which those who bore for, ship and refine petroleum are most familiar are made of plates of steel, riveted together as in a steam boiler. Some of these are to be found in the lone star state, but a number of other tanks are mere excavations in the earth. However, that does not tell the whole story, because the earth must be carefully selected. For you cannot prevent oil from soaking in the ground if the soil is sandy or porous, any more than one can keep water from doing so. Perhaps a good thick coating of Portland cement would make the reservoir tight, but the tanks in Texas are not thus lined. Sometimes there is a facing of boards, yet these are not evidently intended to prevent leakage directly. The one great essential is that a bed of good clay shall be found to supply both an impervious bottom and walls.

One of the biggest, as well as among the first, of these earthen reservoirs belongs to the German-American company, and is situated near a railway about a mile from the famous gushers of Spindletop. To begin with, an excavation was made to a depth of seven feet and with almost vertical walls. Its length was two hundred feet and the width one hundred feet. Then starting a distance of eight feet from the edge, all the way around, an embankment was raised ten feet from the original surface of the ground. The inner face sloped away rapidly from the reservoir, receding horizontally two feet for every foot of rise. At its base this embankment was forty feet thick. For the outer part any available earth was used. But the side toward the oil was composed of the best clay, carefully troweled to render it compact. From the bottom of the reservoir to the top of the embankment there is a vertical distance of seventeen feet.

As yet, apparently, the oil has not been allowed to rise to the top of the embankment. When the pipes from the wells were first permitted to discharge into the reservoir the oil accumulated to the depth of ten feet. This covered the lower three feet of the embankment. Operations were then suspended to observe results. Two or three small leaks were discovered. These have partially cured themselves and nothing may be done to correct them.

To promote the cleanliness of the oil the latter is not permitted to come in contact with the bottom of the reservoir. Enough water is introduced to form a layer of six inches thick between the petroleum and the earth. This particular reservoir has no timber lining.

No cover is provided for it. A wooden roof would be inflammable and increase to risks, while exposure to the air facilitates the escape of certain sulphurous gases from the oil and improves its quality. It is said that a flaming board can be thrown into an open tank without setting fire to the oil. The blaze would be extinguished promptly. However if the oil did take fire it could do no harm to the reservoir.

SUIT FOR MILLIONS

Filed by an Old Man Against a Big Corporation--To Recover Valuable Coal Lands.

News-Democrat Leased Wire Service Philadelphia, Aug. 14.—Suit for $60,000,000 has been brought against the Philadelphia & Reading Coal and Iron company by O. H. Wheeler, who claims over 10,000 acres of coal lands in and about Ashland, which are now held by the company.

Wheeler, who is 86 years old, has been prosecuting the case for years and has collected a mass of evidence extending from the time of Robert Morris, of revolutionary fame. Wheeler's home is at Williamsport. The case has been set for trial in the United States district court at Pittsburg on Nov. 10.

PREHISTORIC GIANT

Was Well Equipped With Teeth—Had Two Rows of Uppers.

Bowling Green, O., Aug. 15.—The remains of some giant have been found on the Charles Whimer farm, west of Sugar Ridge. They were dug out of a large bank by William Jones, while getting sand for the construction of a building. The size of the skeleton indicates that the bones must have belonged to a person at least eight feet in height. They were found at a depth of about five feet and are in a fair state of preservation. The upper jaws contains two rows of teeth one back of the other, something which is very peculiar, as it is said that very few persons are so well endowed with teeth.

The bones were taken to the home of Mr. Whitmer. The skeleton was found in a sitting posture, a position at variance with that used by the Indians in burials. The skull is several inches larger than an ordinary skull and though it probably has been in the ground for centuries, yet it is almost whole.

There is no evidence of implements or other things having been buried in the same place and vigorous digging in that spot failed to reveal anything further.

NOCTURNAL VISITOR

Digs Bones From Cemetery Graves--Thought to be a Badger.

Napoleon, O., Aug. 15.—An animal has been making nocturnal visits in the Hoy cemetery in Harrison township, this county, digging holes into the graves and bringing forth bones. The farmers in the neighborhood have laid for the animal, but have not succeeded in its capture. One man states that last Sunday he found hair and bones which appeared to be that of a child, unearthed by the animal.

The supposition is that the grave robber is a badger. Traces of him were found and tracked to a large hole in the ground. Then hunters then armed themselves with pickaxes and spade and proceeded to dig him out, but as fast as they dug the animal still dug faster, deep down into the earth, and they were unable to reach him.

WORKMAN KILLED

Sallenville, O., Aug. 14.—Jesse Black, aged forty years, was crushed under a building and instantly killed near Grant Hill Church at 5 o'clock last evening. He was working for Clyde Smith, and with him was trying to raise a small building about 20 feet square by means of jackscrews. The building had been elevated two or three feet from the ground when the supports slipped and Black was caught beneath the building and the stones.

PRODUCE PLENTIFUL

Blackberries are Still in the Market--The Small Boy is Speculating in Elderberries.

Canton markets are steady at lately reduced prices for vegetables and grains. The blackberry season is rather surprising, as the berries continue to come into market and sell at from 8 to 9 cents a quart. The wet weather has caused the late blossoms to develop and ripen. Elderberries are on sale at 5 cents a quart from stores. The small boy is making a little extra cash by picking them.

Produce comes in from the farms by the wagon load every day, but a ready sale is found for all that is offered. Very little is shipped in from a distance, the nearby gardeners being able to supply the demand. Cabbage, beans, onions, and all sorts of vegetables can be purchased at surprisingly low prices at both the market and the stores.

OLD SOLDIERS HIT

Of 104th O. V. I. Adjourned Thursday.

WELLSVILLE IS NEXT

Camp-Fire Largely Attended and Good Program Rendered--Death Roll Read and Officers Elected.

The last session of the 33rd annual reunion of the 104th regiment O. V. I. was held in Bund's hall Thursday morning when some unfinished business was disposed of. Many of the old soldiers left on the early morning train but most of them will not leave until this afternoon. During the session Wednesday and today one hundred and twenty-five members of the 104th have registered.

At the afternoon session Thursday communications from absent comrades were read and the death roll for the past year was announced. Following are the names: Company A, Samuel Leever, Sandusky; George Nollensberger, Akron; Jacob Graze, Nimishla; Jonas Kaylor, Greensburg, Company C--William G. Altland, East Palestine, Company D--Lyman Elliott, Ravenna; Henry Green, Garrettsville; William Fitzpatrick, Sterling, Kan.; William Semmer, Company E--Jacob Lee, Canton, Company H--Lehman Odair, Company G--J. W. Weston, St. John, Kan. Company K--Henry Haller, Cleveland; Leonard C. Frost, Lisbon; William P. Pearson; Robert P. Johnston. Resolutions of respect and sympathy were adopted by the convention and copies ordered sent to the families of the deceased comrades.

The reunion next year will be held at Wellsville, Ohio, the second Wednesday and Thursday in August. The following officers were elected: Colonel J. H. Riley, of Wellsville, president; G. G. Cope, of Wellsville, vice president; Thomas W. Butler, of Wellsville, secretary; Jacob Lawrence, of Canal Fulton, treasurer.

At the campfire Wednesday evening an excellent program was carried out. The hall was well filled with veterans and citizens. The program opened with a selection by the Columbia orchestra followed by a piano selection by Mrs. Sidney Mong. The Christian church choir sang "Columbia." A colored trio from Canton in southern songs made the hit of the evening. They were compelled to respond to calls a half dozen times. John Davis, tenor, sang the "New Star Spangled Banner" and a cornet duet was rendered by Messrs. Wilson and Yost. R. F. Long, basso, sang "Sailor Beware." There were other selections by the Columbian orchestra. Addresses were made by Rev. G. B. Smith and Rev. L. H. Stewart.

During the sessions the hall rang with patriotic airs played by the New Philadelphia Grand Army drum corps. The following, all from New Philadelphia, compose the corps: J. C. Joss, bugle; W. W. Richardson, bass drum; Charles Axwe, fife; and J. M. Kniesly, snare drum. Mr. Joss is chief bugler of the national Association of War Musicians. All the instruments used by the corps are relics of the Civil war.

BACHELOR

Life a Severe Jolt Did Dr. Andrews.

UNMARRIED PEOPLE

Have no Place in Society, He Declares--Says Bachelors are Moral Degenerates.

Chicago, Aug. 14.—"Bachelors are moral degenerates. From them emanate most of the sin and shame of the world. They are lacking in mental and physical poise. The life of no individual is complete unless he or she have a life companion of the opposite sex."

Here in a nutshell is the condemnation pronounced upon the unmarried individual by Dr. E. Benjamin Andrews, chancellor of University of Nebraska, in a lecture before students and friends of the University of Chicago, recently.

Bachelor men in the audience listened and looked foolish. Bachelor girls gasped in embarrassment. The married folks present smiled approval while the brand of the erudite doctor was being applied.

"Providence intended that men and women should marry," continued the speaker. "The world was made for the family and not for the individual. The unmarried individual of marriageable age has no place in society nor in the scheme of the universe. Individuals who do not form legal ties with the opposite sex will form illegal ones. The world does not want that kind of ties. Marriage is a good thing. The great men and women of the world--the ones whose lives were symmetrical and whose works were best for posterity--have been married."

Dr. Andrews found fault with the tendency of the age--the tendency of the bachelor man to use this worldly gain for his own selfish enjoyment and the tendency of the bachelor maid to leave the family penates and go to work for herself. He advocated getting back to the good old-fashioned ways of the pioneers, when men shaped their lives and their effects primarily for the marriage state, and the girls, demure and hopeful, waited for them to come along to their fathers' houses and propose. A return to that idyllic method he thought would give the individual the nice mental and physical balance the Creator intended he should have.

Dr. Andrews thoroughly believes in football as a part of the necessary education of young men. "If I had one hundred or one thousand children I would want everyone of them to play football, if they were strong enough, and to play it hard and strenuous. Boys ought to be trained in strenuousness," he said. "That is the great value of football; it is a school in endurance, courage and resolution. I thoroughly believe in the game."
